Wyleless wins M2M 100 spot for fifth consecutive year

Wyleless, the Global Network Enabler (GNE), has again been listed in M2M Magazine's 2010 M2M 100 as one of the most important and influential machine-to-machine technology providers.

The company was listed for the fifth consecutive year by M2M Magazine's editorial advisory board, which compiled and published the annual list to provide a snapshot of the biggest players in the M2M market. Wyleless was commended on its innovative product development and growing impact on the M2M marketplace.

The editors at M2M Magazine commented: "Wyleless has been an active player in the M2M space, both by partnering with a number of other companies on various projects, and by refining its product offerings. With a focus on managed services, Wyleless is demonstrating the value it can bring to the M2M marketplace"

Wyleless teams up with tier one mobile operators to provide managed services that enable companies to securely and reliably communicate with remote and mobile devices in over 120 countries, providing real-time visibility, enhanced control and flexibility for wireless connections. Its managed services include Wyleless Open Connectivity, an Intelligent Network and recently launched next-generation SaaS-based management platform, Porthos.

Dan McDuffie, SVP North America of Wyleless Inc, stated: "We are extremely proud to have been selected for this prestigious list for the fifth time in a row. Our inclusion is testament to our dedication to provide our customers with a truly open and managed intelligent network with global potential that enhances user experience, lowers TCO and increases ROI."
